WELCOME TO MALMÖ AND MALMÖ LIVE

On behalf of the steering and scientific committees, we are delighted to invite you to join us at the first European conference jointly convened by the European Academy of Nursing Science and the Swedish Society of Nursing, with additional support from Malmö University and the Department of Nursing Science. The conference will be held in Malmö at the Clarion Hotel and Congress Centre: Malmö Live, 4th – 5th July 2017.

The title of our conference is: The Future Direction of European Nursing and Nursing Research. We want to engage you in a discussion that sets the scene for the next decade of nursing practice and science. Where are we now? Where are we going?

We have three themes that range from science, through nursing interventions to the fundamental essence of nursing – caring, a topic we have called Humanitus. We do not need to tell you just how important nursing is to the future health of the European people. At the heart of the conference, therefore, will be discussions about who we are, what we do and how we develop the evidence for our actions. With something for everyone, we hope that our conference themes will engage the scientists among you, the daily nursing practitioners and the philosophically minded. We welcome you all.

We are especially happy to welcome you to the beautiful city of Malmö, the third largest town in Sweden. Malmö has a history as a genuine and proud working class town that is now emerging as Scandinavia's hippest hub. Malmö is a part of the expanding Öresunds region and joined to Copenhagen, Denmark by the mighty arching Öresund Bridge. It is a small, friendly city where you can shop until you drop or spend leisure time by the sea. We hope for beautiful weather so you can enjoy the West Harbour, Turning Torso or a nice meal at Little Square [Lilla Torg]. The European Academy of Nursing Science and the Swedish Society of Nursing are really looking forward to seeing you in Malmö at Clarion Hotel and Congress: Malmö Live.

Abstracts and posters

Online submission for abstracts opens August 16th, 2016 on www.swenurse.se. Submission deadline is November 18th, 2016. We welcome high quality abstracts related to any of the following three following conference themes,

A. Methodological innovations in Nursing Research

This theme is focussed on the methods for designing studies in nursing, especially new methods for collecting, analysing both studies and data, concentrating particularly on how to develop research that is programmatic that integrates data using the last techniques in mixed methods analysis.

B. Researching nursing interventions

This theme will explore different research perspectives on the uniqueness of nursing and nursing interventions derived from the world view of nurses themselves, and the way in which nursing interventions can be seen as part of the collaboration between people, patients and other health care providers.

C. Humanitus

This theme will include presentations on clinical nursing's role in addressing essential human needs including quality improvement, and returning professional nursing to its core value of fundamental care without compromising the expertise and knowledge required for excellence in nursing care.

Submitting author will be sent an acknowledgement by e-mail to confirm that the abstract has been received. The scientific board will e-mail whether the abstract is accepted or not, no later than December 19th, 2016. Questions related to abstracts should be addressed to Marte Lavender at m.lavender@exeter.ac.uk
